Plot Summary

The boy they choose, however, is not just any child; he is a wild and boisterous young boy named Johnny Dorset. Sam and Bill's plan quickly spirals out of control as they find themselves at the mercy of their own captive.

Initial Plan

1. The Kidnapping:

- They select Johnny from a wealthy family, thinking that his father will pay handsomely for his return.

2. The Capture:

- They abduct Johnny and take him to a secluded cabin.
- Instead of being frightened or compliant, Johnny embraces the situation and begins to play along.

- He exhibits mischievous behavior, deriving pleasure from the fear he instills in his captors.

- Sam and Bill's Frustration:

- As the days go by, instead of the planned ransom communication, the kidnappers find themselves dealing with an increasingly unruly child.

The Ransom Demand

As the story progresses, the kidnappers finally reach out to Johnny's father, demanding a ransom of $1500 for his safe return. However, they are met with an unexpected response.

Johnny's Father's Reaction

1. Response to the Ransom:

- Rather than expressing concern or urgency, Johnny's father is amused by the situation.
- He perceives the abduction as a nuisance rather than a tragedy, reflecting on how Johnny's behavior has been a burden for him.

2. Counteroffer:

- In a twist of irony, Johnny's father offers Sam and Bill $250 to return Johnny, claiming he would pay them to take his son off his hands.
- This unexpected turn of events highlights the absurdity of the situation and the reversal of power dynamics.

Confrontation and Resolution

- Sam and Bill's Dilemma:

- Faced with the realization that they are now the ones being extorted, the criminals must decide how to proceed.
- They are trapped, feeling the weight of their decision as the situation continues to spiral out of control.
