3. Love and Betrayal: As Cathy develops a romantic relationship with a fellow dancer, she becomes involved in a love triangle that complicates her path to healing. This relationship is marked by betrayal and heartbreak, reflecting the broader themes of the novel.
4. Confronting the Past: The siblings are eventually forced to confront their mother and the past they have tried to escape. This confrontation is pivotal, revealing the deep-seated family issues that continue to affect them.
