Strategies for Maxing Out Confidants

To effectively max out each confidant, you'll need to understand their requirements and plan your time accordingly. Below are strategies for managing your confidant interactions:

1. Plan Your Time Wisely

- Daily Life: Spend time after school and on weekends to build relationships. Use your evenings for other activities like reading or training.
- Use Your Days Off: During vacations or holidays, prioritize confidant activities since you have more free time.

2. Understand Each Confidant's Requirements

Each confidant has specific requirements for leveling up:

- Social Stats: Some confidants require certain social stats (Charm, Kindness, Proficiency, Guts) to be at specific levels. For example, you need a level of Guts for the Death confidant, Tae Takemi.
- Events and Choices: Pay attention to story events and character choices. Certain confidants have specific dialogue choices that can affect your relationship.

3. Prioritize Confidants Based on Your Playstyle

Depending on your playstyle, you may want to prioritize specific confidants:

- Combat-focused Players: Focus on leveling up confidants that enhance battle abilities, like the Lovers (Ann) or Chariot (Ryuji).

- Narrative-focused Players: If you enjoy the story, you might prioritize characters with rich narratives, like the Moon (Yusuke) or Justice (Goro Akechi).

4. Utilize the In-game Calendar

- Mark Important Dates: Keep track of when certain confidants become available to hang out. Some may only be available on specific days or after certain story events.
- Seasonal Events: Certain confidants may only be available during specific seasons. Take advantage of these opportunities.
